WHAT IS CRYPTO TRADING?

Crypto trading is the process of buying and selling cryptocurrencies such as Bitcoin, Ethereum, or other digital assets to profit from price fluctuations. It works on online exchanges that operate 24/7, allowing traders to speculate on short-term movements or invest for the long term.

Unlike traditional markets, crypto trading is highly volatile, meaning prices can rise or fall dramatically within minutes. Traders use strategies like technical analysis, fundamental analysis, and risk management tools to make decisions. Depending on their style, they may engage in spot trading, margin trading, futures contracts, or simply hold assets for years.

WHY IS CRYPTO TRADING?

- High Volatility – rapid price swings create both opportunities and risks.
- Global Reach – anyone with internet access can participate.
- Leverage Options – margin trading allows amplified gains/losses.
- Liquidity – major coins like BTC/ETH have high trading volumes.
- Decentralized Assets – not controlled by a single government or institution.
- Risk Management Tools – stop-loss, take-profit, diversification.
- Innovation Exposure – access to DeFi, NFTs, and blockchain projects.
- Security Concerns – exchange hacks, scams, and phishing risks.
